F-Senate split gets push by faculty group

By Gary Houy
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

Tentative plans for a "lateral" body of faculty members who oppose the present Faculty Senate were announced Tuesday by John King, chairman of the Department of Higher Education.

King said ideas for an alternative body were being "collated by five or six people," but he could not release their names. He said a formal statement would be available Wednesday.

Some members of the Faculty Senate seem not as concerned about the termination of tenured faculty members as they should be," King said. "They're too involved with other things like the censuring of President Derge."

King said faculty who are interested in the lateral body are "not necessarily in favor of President Derge", but are opposed to his censure by the Faculty Senate.

"We would have to have the same kind of approval for this body as did the Faculty Senate and the University Senate," King said. "I think it would take two bodies to start this operation. All bodies would have the option of joining the new faculty body or staying with the Faculty Senate."

The new lateral body would probably not be formed in time for any action on the Faculty Senate's censure of President Derge, but it would be "important in future collective bargaining and as an issue in academic freedom," King said.

When informed of the proposed alternative body, Joanne Thorpe, chairwoman of the Faculty Senate, said she thought the senate has done "everything we could possibly do, given what we have, to hire back some of those terminated tenured faculty members." Ms. Thorpe said the Faculty Senate is also opposed to collective bargaining procedures for faculty members.

Late for class?

Southern Streakers flash across campus

By David Kornblith
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

Decked out in skin suits, shoes, masks or hats and an occasional belt, four Southern Streakers sprinted across the SIU landscape Tuesday.

Streaking, the latest college craze is the process of running across a campus in full view.

The four male SIU streakers jumped gingerly between Life Science II and Lawson Hall at 3 p.m. Not stopping to take advantage of the warm March day, they streaked to a waiting car in the Lawson parking lot and were gone before some passersby could close their mouths.

The name Southern Streakers was written in on one of the paper masks that one of the streakers was wearing.

"That's the funniest thing I've ever seen," said Harold Sudakoff, a senior in finance. Sudakoff said he was coming out of General Classrooms when he caught a glimpse of a couple of bare rumps.

A coed witness to the event didn't think it was all that funny, but she watched the streakers for as long as she could.

Security Office personnel tried to refrain from saying that they have a touchy situation, but that was what the streaking amounted to.

"Streaking is better than having the University torn down," said Chief Tom Leffler. But he added that SIU police would have to take action against streakers.

"We'll have to apprehend them and at least refer them to the Student Life Office," Leffler said. He said he is glad SIU is keeping up with the times.

Another official at the Security Office, who wished to keep his identity unknown, said streaking is not as bad as having college students throw rocks and bottles. "If you get hit, it doesn't hurt as bad," he said.

A number of other "raw" joggers have been observed recently on other campuses, according to the Associated Press.

On Monday an estimated 50 streakers bounced across the University of Illinois campus at Champaign-Urbana. The streakers struck for more than six blocks of worth of time.

Champaign police observed the event but could not decide what to do. They had not been given instructions on capturing streakers.

In St. Louis, two streakers managed to speed through a police station Tuesday. "They caught us by surprise," said a dumbfounded policeman.

About 90 students from West Chester State College in Pennsylvania got into the act Monday. Led by a coed, streakers struck at dorms, and a recreation area on campus where a band from the school of music played, "Hey, Look Me Over."

About 100 male and female streakers ran through the streets and danced on the rooftops at Memphis State University Monday night. Police blocked off the streets but made no arrests.

"I could have caught 20 of them if I wanted to," said one policeman, "but I just don't like the thought of wrestling with a naked man."

Two male students in Athens, Ga., were arrested after a streak that was observed by a crowd on 1,000. Police complained that onlookers threw rocks and bottles at patrol cars when the students were arrested.

Vote splits on party lines

Moore appointment hits roadblock

By Terry Martin
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

Gov. Dan Walker's appointment of Willis E. Moore, 69, to the SIU Board of Trustees was turned down Tuesday by the Illinois Senate Executive Committee.

The almost straight party-line vote was 10-5 against the appointment, with the Republicans in the majority. The sole representative not voting party-line was Clifford Latherall of Carthage in Western Illinois.

Moore is a registered Democrat but has said he wants to be considered an Independent.

"I am a member of the board until ousted by the Senate and they haven't done that yet," Moore said in a telephone interview after the vote. He expects to remain a voting member of the board and plans on attending the special closed meeting set for 9 a.m. Saturday in the Vermillion room of the Student Center.

Moore needs 30 votes from the Senate to maintain his board status. There are 30 Republicans and 29 Democrats now in the Senate.

The senate convenes Wednesday but Moore speculated that it may be as long as a month before it votes on his appointment since it is expected to act solely on Walker's budget proposals for higher education.

Moore said he was "disappointed" with the committee's decision but seemed optimistic about the forthcoming senate vote.

Moore said the committee members' minds were "made up ahead of time."

"They may have had an unofficial caucus before the hearing today," he said. "The people were very polite to me but it's obvious that the questions and answers had nothing to do with the decision."

"It's not a completely closed case," he said. "It's out of my hands now because I'm not a politician by any means."

Moore said there were many people working for him in Springfield including Sen. Kenneth V. Buzbee, D-Carbondale.

"Evidently, the party machinery went into effect," Tim Renn, Walker's assistant press secretary said Tuesday. "We're gonna fight it in the Senate and try and force the representatives into

Press contest won by Daily Egyptian

By Leah Yates
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

The Daily Egyptian has won first place for its typography and design, in a contest of Inland Daily Press Association member newspapers.

The contest is sponsored annually by Northwestern University's Medill School of Journalism and the association, which has commercial newspaper members in 25 states, 3 Canadian provinces and Bermuda.

The award, first place for newspapers printing with the offset method and with circulation of more than 15,000 daily, was accepted by Adrian Combs, Daily Egyptian business manager.

He received the plaque Tuesday morning at Inland's annual convention in Denver, Colo.

The Daily Egyptian is the only college newspaper among the winners in six categories.

Second place in the Daily Egyptian's division went to the Minnesota Daily, the University of Minnesota at Minneapolis newspaper. The Janesville (Wisc.) Gazette was third.

Jack L. Scissors, director of the typography contest said, "The purpose of the contest is to provide an incentive for making newspapers more readable."

Scoring was based on design of front, editorial, women's and sports pages, headline and body type styles and spacing, advertising typography and makeup, and press work.

Howard B. Taylor, retired typographic and design consultant of the Copley Newspaper chain, redesigned the format of the Daily Egyptian to its present style when he was a visiting professor of journalism at SIU in spring quarter of 1968.

He is considered one of the foremost newspaper designers in the world and has worked with several newspapers in Latin America.

The Daily Egyptian was judged on three consecutive issues published during the first week in December 1973, a requirement for the contest.

Design and display of the front page of the Daily Egyptian is the responsibility of Ed Horn, managing editor; Larry Marshak, night editor, and three graduate assistants.

The advertising layout and typography is coordinated by John Curtner, Daily Egyptian advertising manager and 16 advertising salespersons.

The typesetting and makeup sections of the Daily Egyptian include Phil Roach, print shop supervisor, and 22 student employees.

Steve Robinson is coordinator of the camera and press and the 11 student workers in his area of newspaper production.

U-Senate votes for ombudsman

The University Senate voted Tuesday to recommend continuation of the ombudsman office and establishment of a vice presidency for research and projects.

The vice president will go to the Board of Trustees, which requested U-Senate input on the issue. The Senate also approved an ad hoc committee report critical of the new executive officer structure set up last January by the board.

Sen. Carolyn Fleming, secretary of the Civil Service Employees Council, said it was important that the ombudsman be retained and accessible to students and faculty.

Tom Busch, assistant to the dean of student affairs, said the dean's office had found the ombudsman to be a "very integral part of the student affairs division."

"Without it students have no clearly defined avenue to appeal issues," he said.

Award winner

The Daily Egyptian has won first place in a contest of Inland Daily Press Association member papers for its typography and design. The award was for papers with circulations of at least 15,000 which utilize offset printing. The annual contest was sponsored by Northwestern University's Medill School of Journalism and the press association. DE business manager Adrian Combs accepted the award Tuesday in Denver. Senate committee votes against Moore the light of day."

Renn said Monday that Republicans oppose Moore because of his American Association of University Professors (AAUP) and specifically referred to his role in contesting the board's refusal to grant tenure to Douglas Allen in 1970.

Allen is a former philosophy professor and critic of SIU's Vietnamese Center for Studies and Programs, who was not granted tenure by the board and was turned down in December, 1971 for a continuing appointment.

Renn said there was never any question of party politics on Moore's part since he did not campaign for the board seat.

"The governor plans to fight for the appointment," Renn said. "The governor decided he wanted someone really close to the campus and on top of this situation. Moore is a man of integrity and knows about the educational community and understands the students," he added.

Renn described Buzbee's activities at Tuesday's hearing as good. Buzbee sponsored Moore and introduced him to the committee.

"He (Buzbee) tried to do everything he could to get Moore approved," Renn said. "He tried to impress upon them the fact that Moore would be a stabilizing factor for the morale of the faculty at Carbondale."

Doug Whitley, co-director of the Association of Illinois Student Governments (AISGF), said he testified for the appointment and termed the questioning by the senators as "baited."

"They tried to bring out anything that would discredit him," Whitley said. "He handled himself excellently."

Whitley said he told the committee that SIU and the board need stability and Moore could provide it. "Moore is known for his knowledge of southern Illinois and SIU and for his integrity and character," he said.

Renn said the questioning lasted about an hour and ranged from topics of Moore's role in the Allen case to student representation on the board to his opinion of drafting women to the army.

"There weren't any questions I minded answering," Moore said. "Some were irrelevant though."

Moore said the questioning about the Allen issue went "easy at first but then they let me explain it." Moore said he told the committee he supported Allen on "the basis of principle involved."

Some questions also were asked about Moore's opinion of the recent terminations of 104 university employees, he said.

"They asked me why there was faculty unrest at SIU-C," Moore said. "I told them the principle of tenure is extremely important to education."

"When you break the rule of tenure it should be the last resort," he added.

Moore said there were no questions asked about his qualifications to be a trustee at all.

William C. Harris, president of the senate and member of the executive committee, spoke at length of his qualifications before he said the institution should not be ruled from within and voted no, Moore said.

"It sounded like a campaign speech for me until the vote," Moore said.

"Harris insisted I was a man of integrity and skill but then said he wished I was up for approval at any other school in the state."

Moore was named by Walker to the Board on January 7. He was supposed to fill in the vacancy of Dr. Earl Walker of Harrisburg who resigned in July. The term expires in January, 1977.

The Senate in November refused to confirm another Walker appointment to the SIU board, James Nagle, 28, of Danville. Nagle, an SIU graduate and instructor at Danville Junior College, was questioned by Republicans at his confirmation hearing concerning his affiliation with the Illinois Education Association (IEA) and the American Civil Liberties Union (ACLU).

After the Senate party-line vote of 29-11 in his favor, one short of the 30 required to seat a trustee, Nagle said the major cause of his rejection was his support of collective bargaining through the IEA.

Nagle was the eighth Walker nominee turned down by the committee. He sat in on the November SIU board meeting and studied SIU's budget before it.

Moore joined the SIU faculty in 1955 as chairman of the Philosophy Department and remained in that position until his retirement Aug. 31. He has served as president of the local chapter of the AAUP and was an active member when he taught at the University of Tennessee for eight years and the University of Missouri at Columbia for 12 years.

Moore is a former chairman of the Faculty Council and has served as a representative on the Faculty Advisory Committee of the Illinois State Board of Higher Education (IBHE), for seven years.

Moore has bachelor's and master's degrees from the University of Missouri at Columbia and a Ph. D. from the University of California at Berkeley.

Mitchell, Vesco linked

NEW YORK (AP)—For nearly a year before he gave $200,000 secretly to President Nixon's re-election campaign, financier Robert L. Vesco sought Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell's influence on his behalf in a stock fraud case, a key government witness testified Tuesday.

"He asked me if I could use my good offices with Mr. Mitchell," the witness, Harry L. Sears, told a jury at the federal court criminal conspiracy trial of Mitchell and former Commerce Secretary Maurice H. Stans. Sears, a co-defendant in the case, testified after being granted total immunity from prosecution.

Sears testified that despite months of pressuring Mitchell, the time eventually arrived when Vesco admitted "they had absolutely fallen on their face in relation to the fraud case and suggested they start all over again with Mitchell."

Fire, police board learns new duties

By Dan Haar
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

New members of the Board of Fire and Police Commissioners officially met for the first time Monday night to familiarize themselves with the duties of the board.

The members' appointments were formally approved by the city council Feb. 18 after the council dismissed the former members of the board for refusing to comply with a city ordinance transferring the board's functions to the city manager.

City Attorney John Womick and Carbondale Police Chief Joe Dakin also attended the meeting to answer any questions brought by the new board.

Discussion centered around the duties of the board under the city ordinance and the suit brought against the city by the former board asking for a declaratory judgment on the ordinance.

Womick compared the Illinois Board of Fire and Police Commissioners Act, which the board formerly operated under, with the city ordinance.

Womick explained that the changes primarily involved the appointing and dismissal powers of the board. "The ordinance took power from the board and gave it to the city manager. Previously the city manager had no power," Womick explained.

The ordinance authorizes the city manager to fill vacancies in the police and fire departments from lists of candidates provided by the board. The city manager also disciplines firemen and policemen with the board reviewing each case.

The new board also requested records possessed by the former board members. The records include examinations and other data needed by the board to operate.

The records are being kept by former board member Rosemary Hawkes who was secretary for the board.

Under an agreement with the Public Personnel Administration in Chicago, only those who have signed an agreement can see the examination. Former board chairman Elwyn Zimmerman and former board recorder Sandra Plapp signed the agreement.

Dakin told the new board that they would have to contact the PPA to work out a solution to allow the new board members access to the examinations.

Womick also informed the board about the two law suits which the former board was involved in. One suit against the board filed by the city is a request for a writ of mandamus which would have required the members to comply with the ordinance.

The other suit was filed by the former board against the city asking for a declaratory judgment on the validity of the ordinance.

Womick said the suit against the city is made out in the name of the board. He explained that the board could join in the former board member's suit. If they decided to do so, Womick suggested they contact the city council about an attorney as required by the ordinance.

Board member Thomas Tyler said the board could join in the suit on a friendly basis to clear up the matter and determine if the city has the power to change the ordinance.

Whitehead criticizes budgeting

By David C. Miller Jr.
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

About $6.5 million of SIU's budget expenditures represents very questionable spending, and might well be used to rehire the 104. Fred Whitehead, terminated assistant professor of English said Tuesday night.

Addressing the Save Our School (SOS) meeting on "The Budget Crisis," Whitehead displayed 1973-74 numerous budget items. While he concentrated on pointing out "rather spectacular" salary administration figures, Whitehead also commented on several out-of-the-way budget expenditures. Whitehead was one of a series of speakers before an audience of about 60 in the Student Center ballroom.

SIU's $10,218 budgeting of SIU's Air Force Reserve Officer Training Corps should be taken over by the federal government, Whitehead said. He said the $14,240 cost of a military property custodian, "whatever that is," should also be a governmental expense.

Whitehead drew ripples of laughter when he wryly observed a $65,074 salary expense for SIU's key control personnel.

Detailing the salary expenses of the various administrative offices, Whitehead pointed out over more than $100,000 in the office of SIU President David R. Derge and another $275,432 in the office of Keith Leasure, vice president for academic affairs.

No administrators were present at the meeting to respond to Whitehead's comments or the audiences questions. Mike Shriber, terminated assistant professor of English, said Derge's secretary had sent "regrets" Derge could not attend.

Herb Donow, president of the Carbondale Federation of University Teachers (CFUT) criticized the lack of action among those affected by the budget cut-backs. While he doubted people could overcome "petty differences" and band together, Donow said such a sight would be "refreshing."

Donow also knocked the idea of accomplishing things by talking or by "sending resolutions up to wherever they go." It is no longer possible, he said, to talk problems out with the administration.

The administration response in such cases, Donow said, is "Look, there are a lot of locks on campus." Donow stressed that the intellectual resources of the University must be considered with other expenses.

Robert Harrell, terminated assistant professor of English and president of the local chapter of American Association of University Professors, said the most damaging action of the entire crisis was the lawsuit initiated against the 104 by the administration on Dec. 17. By taking the question of financial exigency to court, Harrell said, the administration automatically precluded any dialogue between the 104 and SIU about the budget. He said the administration can then retreat to a "no comment" stance, and say discussion would imperil "pending litigation."

Harrell was also bitter about the length of time the lawsuit may take. While the case may be in court years from now, Harrell said, "We'll all be gone."

"The University may very well lose the suit, but they will have already gotten rid of us," Harrell said angrily. The lawsuit seeks court recognition of a financial exigency at SIU.

Harrell also said he regretted the Board of Trustees freeze on all grievance cases filed after the terminations. The excuse of litigation is being used again, Harrell said, to prevent the 104 from legally pursuing legitimate complaints about their job losses.

Jim Kania, student body vice president, told the meeting the Student Senate's "role" in "pointing out mistakes" led to the senate censure of Derge.

Kania also said SIU's prestige is at a low, and the University will have a hard time attracting the academic talent necessary to SIU's being a great institution.

The audience at the meeting was a mix of students and faculty. A number of SOS stalwarts were present, and several other terminated faculty.

SOS had hoped for a turnout of 400-500 and Harrell said he was disappointed, but not discouraged, by the attendance.

Most faculty members, he said are "past the point of discussion," and the SOS meeting would have shown them nothing new about the budget. The faculty, he added, may be ready to move.

White House takes step to stop subpoena

WASHINGTON (AP)—The White House asked for one more day Tuesday to respond to the House Judiciary Committee's request for evidence for its impeachment inquiry, averting an immediate resort by the committee to its subpoena power.

Chairman Peter W. Rodino, D-N.J., left little doubt, however, that a subpoena will be issued if the White House fails to deliver the requested material on schedule.

"The committee is of a mind to exercise its power of subpoena if there is a refusal to honor our request for information," Rodino said at a news conference after a closed session of the committee.

The issuance of a subpoena could raise a serious constitutional question if President Nixon invokes his presidential powers to resist the congressional power of impeachment.

In self-defense

To the Daily Egyptian:

In response to a letter aimed at incriminating, defaming and slandering my character and personality, through accessible means of the D.E. I am hereby prompted, not to defend myself, but to shed light on the nature of the accusation aimed at me by a most ignorant, ill-informed, ill-willed accuser, Sam Denoms.

Sam, I cannot recognize by sight, but on occasions past, have received reports from various people of lies he has spoken against me before. This I do not care about. Words are harmless. And the judge and jury, lord and master over my life (Sam), is he not himself an ex-convict, found guilty of murder? It is no wonder why he would grasp the opportunity of convicting some one whom he knows absolutely nothing about. The burden of realistic evaluation of his own adjustment capabilities should be the question he asks; first to himself.

Sam, you do not know anything about me and the allegations that you have brought against me have enough loop holes for the Israelites to pass through: the technicalities of which I need not enlighten you on.

You have unjustly involved innocent and undeserving people in your calculated slander. I am a "student athlete" and not a sportsman or track star as you term it. The fact that I am not an American citizen should not be used as a hang up. I live here while attending school, and my adjustment depends on people like you. You seem so bitter against foreigners. That is why there is so much turmoil in the world today. And to make it worse (I am not prejudiced for all men should learn to live together), I am a black man, just like you are. Even if I were maladjusted to the American life style, you should be the first to give your hand, but instead it is the opposite. As far as the technicality involving my existence or pre-existence at SIU, obviously you are at a total loss and that you will always be maladjusted to the American.

To the Daily Egyptian:

What is with you guys, always painting the picture of the SIU Men's Gymnastics Team as a group of losers? These are young, enthusiastic boys who are improving rapidly, but competing against some pretty uneven odds. They don't have the advantage of having the older, experienced teammates carry them and win while they grow and gain confidence and poise. Instead, these young boys are the heart of their team and must carry the burdens of their necessary learning experience of these first collegiate competitions—which is through mistakes. The teams they are meeting are among the best—juniors and seniors, who were once carried by juniors and seniors when they were young and making all the mistakes. Without the likes of their more skilled experienced teammates, who are currently red-shirted, these boys are up against some heavy odds. But you should see them!... They meet each team, no matter how unevenly matched, with guts, spirit, and a bit more skill each time. They are improving steadily, becoming better and more consistent competitors, and as long as they are out there giving their all, representing Southern with enthusiasm, head and hopes high, what more could you ask?!

Boy for boy, they add up to a group of real winners!!

Stephanie Stromer
SIU Women's Gymnastics
Sophomore, English

As reporter for the men's gymnastic team this season, I have continuously pointed out how young the nucleus was and how incredibly tough the schedule—among others, the defending NCAA champ, Big Ten champ, NCAA second runner-up. Other than that, I couldn't say they won when they lost, or say they did well when they didn't.

Contrary to what some people think, sportswriters for this campus newspaper are journalists, not public relations people or cheerleaders for SIU sports. Every individual who does a good job will be singled out for it, and athletes who do less than the coach expected of them will also be singled out. I for one get sick of the way Jack Brickhouse glosses over the shortcomings of the Cubs and inflates their successes.

Two weeks ago I received an anonymous letter saying fairly much the same as Ms. Stromer's letter above. When I showed it to Coach Bill Meade, he said he would not have me do anything different. He said when his team does well, he wants it known, and when it does poorly he wants it reported as such.

Going through each article this season, I think the ups and downs of the inexperienced, but much improved, gymnastic team are well-reflected.

Editorial Wanted: research vice president

Although the university is often accused of being overloaded with higher administrators, at great cost to students and faculty, there is still one administrative position that is sorely needed. That is a Vice President for Research and Projects.

The administration has acknowledged the need for this position. The last two Graduate Councils, the graduate students, and individual university researchers all support it. But when the position was presented to the February 14 Board of Trustees meeting for approval, they turned it down by a 3-3 vote.

Two reasons were given for rejecting the position. One was that the university should de-emphasize faculty research. The other was that in a time of scarce resources, no new highly paid position should be created.

The first argument can be countered merely by looking up the definition of a university in Webster's dictionary. It is "an educational institution of the highest level, with one or more undergraduate colleges, together with a program of graduate studies and a number of professional schools, and authorized to confer various degrees..." The function of a university is to discover, as well as disseminate, knowledge. It was not very many years ago at this very university that a faculty member was rated on three things—his teaching, his research, and his community service.

The second argument, while seeming to have more validity at first sight, does not take into account the primary function of a vice president for research. His main job would be to bring money into the university, a great deal more than he would take out in salary.

A good research vice president would have to be thoroughly familiar with state, federal, and private granting sources, know where their interests lie, what their proposal deadlines are, and what kind of facilities they require before they pledge their funds. He would have to be able to run a department devoted to the interests of the researchers on the campus and able to help them with their grant proposals and their deadlines. Without this kind of help, researchers spend more of their time looking for potential donors, writing proposals, and struggling through university red tape, then they do on their actual research.

Research money coming into the university will benefit not only the faculty engaged in research, but also graduate students whose prime purpose is often to learn research techniques and extend frontiers of knowledge. It will provide funds for more assistantships and fellowships. If enough money is involved, some might even filter down as student aid for undergraduates. Certainly the extension of knowledge will benefit all groups of students.

Although the proposals for vice president for research was turned down once by the Board of Trustees, it is not dead yet. One trustee asked for general university input on the question and proposed that it be raised again after university reaction was assessed. Even though the Board feels, rightly, that campus sentiment in most instances is to spend less money on administration and more on academics, this particular position is an exception to the general feeling in many quarters.

Many of the so-called "service" areas eventually become self-serving bureaucracies, perpetuating themselves by entrenched power and causing more general harassment than they were ever worth. This is one service area, however, which can truly serve the whole community if it is organized and staffed properly, and if it keeps its goal of help to the researchers as its primary consideration.

Campus reaction is needed on this subject so that the Board can discover how vital a great many people feel this vice presidency is. Let the Board and the university administration know that this is one of the few executive positions we really need.

Suddenly we are sleeping

To the Daily Egyptian:

In reply to Wayne Bahde, Alpha Eta Rho: Two of the main points of your argument supporting Dr. Derge for terminating 104 faculty members, (i.e., that faculty cuts were made only in departments where administrators did not meet "the challenges of providing a meaningful education for today's students" and that "more emphasis is being put on technical and specialized programs") simply are not true.

I realize that you were comparing, by the second point listed above, bachelor's and master's degree programs with programs in vocational fields. However, what can be more technical or specialized than the field of molecular science? In this department alone, considerable budget cuts were made (almost exclusively among those who had openly opposed the present administration.) What can be more meaningful to a student in the age of an impending energy crisis, necessitating the need for rapid developments in harnessing energy of the earth's chemical resources, than the study of molecules or atoms? Is this what we call academic excellence?

When we wanted to stay out all night against dorm regulations, live in off-campus housing, and have boys in our beds (and vice versa) we were very well able to camp overnight on the University lawns and protest endlessly. Suddenly we are sleeping.

A lousy $1 fine

To the Daily Egyptian:

I feel that it is rather ridiculous that while I was in patronizing the good Egyptian magazine I received a lousy $1 fine. I couldn't have been in there more than five minutes. I realize the University is poor but the classified ad has cost me $10. However, I know that I was guilty of not paying into the meter. I just feel that the University and the SIU police could respect the fact that an outsider is bringing money to the University and that they do not or should not have to hawk eye the meters.

Role of women in the American classroom

By Marilyn Stone

Student Writer

Raising the consciousness of the American woman to a realization of her fullest capabilities and potential can best be accomplished through public education.

If the young female in the classroom can be reached, society can begin to reshape the attitudes and aspirations of future generations. Consequently, the educational institution and specifically its personnel are the key to the liberation of women's traditional attitudes toward the choice of a career.

Traditionally, women have shunned positions of higher status because they: (1) did not feel capable of holding such a position, (2) were not prepared for the job and its responsibilities or, (3) were discriminated against in hiring. In most cases, it was a combination of these reasons. Because of their attitude toward career goals and the lack of viable alternatives, many capable women often entered the teaching field.

According to the U.S. Department of Labor in 1969, 60 per cent of women professional workers were teachers. Among the total teacher population, however, 76 per cent of all teachers are women. Eighty-five per cent of elementary school teachers and 46 per cent of secondary school teachers are women.

As the ranks of the teaching profession are primarily in the hands of women, they are in the best position to influence the aspirations of their female students. However, as in other professions, women teachers have not sought after or have not been granted positions of higher status within their own occupation.

Since the late nineteenth century, teaching has been a female strong hold. Once, a predominately male occupation, the trend began to change when men found occupations of higher status and of greater profit. It was, in fact, the leaders of women's suffrage who campaigned for the further education of women teachers.

Susan B. Anthony was said to have addressed a group of men teachers in the mid-1800's, who were grumbling about the lack of esteem in which the community held them, accordingly, "It seems to me that you fail to comprehend the cause of the disrespect of which you complain. Do you not see that so long as society says that women have not brains enough to be a doctor, lawyer or minister, but have plenty to be a teacher, everyone of you who condescends to teach, tacitly admits before Israel and the sun that he has no more brains than a woman."

Unfortunately, however, the woman teacher has suffered from a Victorian image beginning in the 30's which classified her as a devoted, retiring spinster. The history of American education illustrates how the teacher was often forced to accept almost impossible community standards in order to keep her job.

The teaching profession became one where educated women could hold down a respectable job, satisfy "maternal instincts," and provide for a secure future.

Proof of the low aspirations of women in education is reflected in the number of women presently holding administrative positions. Statistics indicate that even in elementary schools where there are a large percentage of women teachers, 80 per cent of the principals are men. Among secondary administrators, a pathetic three per cent of principals are women.

"The main qualification for promotion in schools is to wear trousers and coach athletics," said Rep. Edith Green (D-Ore.). Green suggested in the March, 1974, issue of Ms. magazine that "sex discrimination is one reason our schools are in trouble. 'The best women leave, because there's no chance for promotion,'" she said.

The inferior status of women in schools systems also reflects the acceptance of women of their position. Apparently many women feel that men are better disciplinarians, leaders, and administrators.

A further indication of the low aspiration level of women is represented by the relatively small number of them in higher education. Only 18 per cent of those employed in college and universities are women. The median annual salary for women in higher education is $7,732 where as for men the figure is $9,275, according to labor department statistics. Higher education has typically been a strong "male bastion," said one educator. Perhaps this is why only one per cent of all college presidents are women.

If American women in education do not hold positions of higher status—which is also reflected in positions of higher status outside the educational field—how can they inspire the young women in their classrooms to seek positions of higher esteem?

"Professions with higher status and higher income potential have traditionally been regarded as 'masculine,'" said Doris L. Sassower, former president of the New York Women's Bar Association. "This is in itself a barrier to women, because cultural expectations generate a self-fulfilling philosophy," she said.

Sociologist David Riesman has said that women are their own worst enemies. Educated housewives accuse working mothers of neglecting their children. Research studies have shown that women college students prefer men teachers to women and prefer male bosses to female.

Thus raising the aspirations of women must be done by conscientious liberated teachers who believe that women have equal abilities and capabilities as men. Clearly, teacher's attitudes toward role assignment in the classroom are one indication of their own feelings on the issue.

For instance, a history teacher instructs her class on the pre-Civil War period failing to mention the important role that women played in the abolition movement. Thus she reinforces the idea that women had little role in our nation's history.

As another example, an elementary school teacher assigns roles in her classroom to the boys because little girls are not supposed to carry heavy objects or engage in dirty work.

In addition, vocational counselors need to be informed of the career opportunities available for both men and women and then encourage them to cross the traditional sex-identified roles. While the job market opportunities for women in professional fields needs to be expanded, many medical and law schools as well as science related fields are actively recruiting women.

Higher education is beginning to respond to the challenge of promoting female self-awareness. Across the country, programs in women's studies and women's consciousness groups offer programs for women of all occupations to know themselves and their sex better.

Changes in public attitudes toward women and high status career attainment will be slow in coming. However, there is good indication that such a movement is on the way. For instance, the Kalamazoo, Mich., Public Schools recently threatened with a law suit regarding their sanction of alleged sexually stereotyped materials for use in the classroom. The district responded with the formation of a study committee who were instructed to review the literature and make recommendations to the board of education regarding the situation.

The real question in this matter remains. Will the female in education respond to the community challenge or will she be content to remain teaching the same material in the same way as in the past?

It is clear, however, that women who choose to enter into positions of higher leadership must respond to the challenge. The cost of higher education is too great to risk the lives of future generations of young women.

The job of raising the aspirations of young women is up to the teachers. If she fails to do her job, no amount of federal legislation or increased job opportunities will induce young women to seek higher status goals in the future.

Dancer Lori Crocker

Thursday night Concert features 'Solitary Dancer'

"A dancer in repose, alone with her inner music" are the words Warren Benson used to describe his piece "Solitary Dancer," which will be performed by dancer Lori Crocker with the University Symphonic Band, at 8 p.m. Thursday in Shryock Auditorium.

A junior at Carbondale Community High School, Ms. Crocker is a student of Toni Intravaia and has past experience dancing with the Dayton Regional Ballet Company.

Conducted by Nick Koenigstein.

Motive of power will be discussed

William Garner of the Department of Government will speak on "The Power Motive and Christian Morality," a Faculty Forum presentation at 7:30 Thursday evening at the Newman Center, 715 S. Washington.

All interested persons are invited to attend.

the 75 piece Symphonic Band will perform Dimitri Shostakovich's

"Festive Overture" Op. 96—a brilliant and stirring piece that was transcribed from orchestra to concert band by Donald Hunsberger.

Another festive piece on the program is Serge Lance's "The Kerkraade Festival," which is a descriptive, programmatic piece depicting the beer gardens, parades and celebrations held in the south Holland village of Kerkraade.

English horn soloist Charlene Evans will be featured in Fred Kepner's "Cuban Fantasy," which is a three part suite.

Completing the program, the Symphonic Band will perform Richard Rodgers' incidental music from the television series, "Victory at Sea," and a march "Silver Cornets."

The concert is free and open to the public.

Spring blood drive could save a life; will seek recruits

By Bob Springer
Student Writer

You may save your own life if you donate a pint of blood this spring when the Arnold Air Society (AAS) and the St. Louis chapter of the American Red Cross co-sponsor the bi-annual blood drive.

The drive will be held April 16 through April 19 in Student Center Ballrooms A, B and C. Craig Priebe, chairman of the drive, said there are two good reasons for donating a pint of your valuable blood.

Blood is a substance of life which can only be gotten from living human beings, he said, and a pint of your blood may make the difference between life and death for someone else.

"The other reason for giving blood," Priebe said, "is that the donor is covered by the Red Cross for any blood he might need for one year from the time of his donation."

The AAS, with volunteer help from its "little sister" organization, Angel Flight, and the Pan-Hellenic Association, coordinated the drive with the Red Cross.

Priebe said one or two weeks before the drive, these groups will set up recruitment tables in the Student Center and some dorms—including Trueblood, Grinnell and Lentz halls, and the School of Technical Careers. Persons will be asked to fill out an appointment card at these tables.

Priebe explained that it will not be mandatory for a donor to have a prior appointment, but he said the operation runs "much more smoothly and efficiently" if appointments are made. He said it takes 20 to 30 minutes to give blood and the Red Cross tries to fill all available spots by appointment.

Last fall, Priebe said 1,000 people signed up to give blood. He said that only 850 of those kept their appointments and an additional 200 people "just came in" and donated. He said the grand total of 1,050 pints of blood collected was the highest total to date.

"It's been pretty successful. We do look forward to a good drive," Priebe said. He said last November's drive used 16 beds, but this time, 18 or 20 beds will be set up.

Priebe said there were two main reasons why some people with appointments do not give blood.

"Some people just chicken out," he said, in fear of the needle which must be stuck into their arm. The other reason is that they do not meet the physical qualifications.

Qualifications require that a person be in good general health and weigh at least 110 lbs. "This includes girls," Priebe said.

A donor must be 18 years of age or older; must not ever have had hepatitis or been in contact with anyone who has had hepatitis within the past six months; must not have had malaria within the past three years; must not have had a child or been pregnant within the past six months; must not have had a cold within a week or 10 days prior to giving blood; or not had major dental work within 72 hours of giving blood. This includes having any teeth extracted, filled or cleaned, said Priebe.

Before giving blood, donors will fill out a medical history form to determine that all qualifications are met.

Priebe said that doctors from the University Health Service will be on hand during the drive.

The drive is scheduled from 9 a.m. until 4 p.m. Tuesday through Thursday and from 9 a.m. to 5 or possibly 6 p.m. on Friday, Priebe said. "People who work and would like to give blood will be able to do so on Friday evening," he said.

After a donor has given his pint of life-saving blood, he will be escorted to a snack area and asked to rest for about 20 minutes while having milk or juice and cookies.

Priebe said donors should not over-exert themselves after giving blood and should follow "general rules of common sense." Alcohol and caffeine drinks should be avoided for at least 12 hours after giving blood. Donors should also restrict themselves from climbing a lot of stairs.

For more information about the spring blood drive, contact the AAS at 453-2481.

Drug agents face trial today

By Dennis Montgomery
Associated Press Writer

ALTON (AP)—A federal trial begins Wednesday for 11 police drug agents accused of breaking into six homes without warrant, warning or probable cause and terrorizing their residents.

According to indictments returned by a grand jury last August, six federal officers and five local policemen are charged with planning and carrying out the raids in the East St. Louis area last April and violating the civil rights of 11 persons.

The raids first came to light the morning of April 24 when Herbert Giglotto of Collinsville, Ill. told this story.

"At about 9:30 last night we heard this crash," he said, "We hear this screaming. I take about three steps out of bed and I see these hippies with guns.

Student reported in stable condition

David Johnson, 24, an SIU student, was listed in "stable" condition Tuesday at Wesley Memorial Hospital in Chicago.

Johnson, of 516 S. Rawlings St., was flown to Chicago after a 5 mm air rifle he was holding discharged, sending a pellet into his brain. He was taken to Chicago to receive treatment from a neurosurgeon.

Johnson was standing at the window in his room looking for birds when his rifle discharged. The pellet hit him below the left eye and lodged in his brain.

Talk will cover 'Great Revolution'

A lecture on the Great Proletarian Cultural Revolution in the People's Republic of China will be given at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday in the Morris Library Auditorium.

Richard N. Montaperto, director of the East Asian Studies Program at Indiana University, will speak on student involvement in the cultural revolution. The public is invited to attend this free presentation, sponsored by the Asian Students Association.

It was incorrectly stated in Tuesday's DE that the lecture would be held on Thursday.

High school boy dies in gym class

RIVER GROVE (AP)—Craig G. Tekiel, 15, a sophomore with a history of heart trouble, collapsed and died Tuesday in the gymnasium of Holy Cross High School after completing warm-up exercises for a physical education class.

"I told my wife, 'My God, we're dead.'"

By his count a dozen agents had invaded his apartment looking for drugs. They left after discovering he had the wrong address, but not before Giglotto, according to the indictment, had been handcuffed and thrown on his bed by an agent who held a pistol to his head and demanded information on drug trafficking.

"For God's sake, who are you?" Giglotto begged. The agent, he said, replied, "Just shut your mouth or I'll kill you."

Later that night there was a second mistaken raid, this time at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Donald Askew in Collinsville. They broke down the door and brandished pistols and shotguns, the Askews said, before discovering they had the wrong house.

Subsequently Jon Meiners of nearby Edwardsville told newsmen that his home had been raided on April 20. He said he was taken across the Mississippi to St. Louis, where he was held in jail for three days without being charged or allowed to make a phone call.

Then Robert Underwood of East St. Louis said that on April 10, agents burst into his home, handcuffed him to a chair and beat him.

The indictment also charges that on April 19, the agents raided a home occupied by James Griffin. The only charge involving this raid is forcible entry without probable cause or search warrant. The sixth raid involved an unoccupied house.

In none of the raids did the agents recover drugs. Two of Meiners' former roommates later pleaded guilty to drug trafficking charges, but no arrests except Meiners' and no charges, except those against the agents, resulted from the raids.

The agents are presently under suspension pending the outcome of the trial.

Before jury selection and testimony begins, U.S. District Court Judge Omer Poos must rule on a series of defense motions. One asks that the indictments be dismissed because of alleged improper conduct by Justice Department attorneys before the grand jury that indicted the agents last August.

Defense attorneys charged that two of the prosecution lawyers influenced grand jurors improperly by their comments, laughter and gestures during testimony by the agents and other witnesses.

The defendants worked for the Bureau of Narcotics and Dangerous Drugs, the now defunct Abuse Law Enforcement Agency, The Alcohol, Tobacco, Firearms Bureau of the Treasury Department, the Internal Revenue Service, or were members of the St. Louis Police Department attached to DALE.

Those indicted include:

will run one year.

"There sure is a lot of hard drug traffic," Dakin said. "Once this thing gets rolling there's going to be a lot of arrests for serious things. We don't want Carbondale to be a center for hard drugs."

—Daniel J. Duffy, a St. Louis policeman, and William C. Dwyer, a BNDD agent, accused of beating Underwood.

—Dwyer and fellow BNDD agents Dennis Harker and Kenneth Bloemker, accused of the Meiners incident. Dwyer is also accused of causing Meiners to be held in jail for three days without charge.

—Dwyer, Duffy, Bloemker, Dennis R. Moriarty, also of BNDD, and St. Louis policeman Donald W. Spicer, accused of breaking into the Giglotto home.

Budget proposal awaits scrutiny by House groups

SPRINGFIELD (AP)—James Washburn gets back to counting the state's pennies this week as Gov. Daniel Walker submits the fiscal 1975 state budget proposal to the Illinois General Assembly.

Washburn is the sometimes-bearded chairman of the Illinois House Appropriations Committee, one of two legislative committees which will scrutinize the administration's budget request.

When House Speaker W. Robert Blair, R-Park Forest, or any of the other Republican House members with a more detailed look at the administration's spending patterns, Washburn's staff does the work.

"We might not be able to lessen the dollar amount of state government, but we're going to see that what is spent gets spent efficiently," said the fourth-term Republican from Morris.

The beard that the 52-year-old Washburn sported last year — "the first one I have ever worn" — is gone now. But renewed is the dedication to money matters which kept him working 12-to-16-hour days last spring on a budget Walker had boasted was $617 million less than the last offering of his Republican predecessor.

"He wasn't being truthful. As we can see now, his budget grew larger than former Gov. Richard B. Ogilvie's as the month passed," Washburn said.

Meeting both before and after the daily floor sessions, Washburn gavelled down votes on nearly half of the $7 billion Walker proposals in the last three weeks of the six-month spring session last year.

"We couldn't do anything but hastily point out some of the more obvious problem areas, and we were determined not to let the governor do that sort of last-minute thing again," Washburn said.

Walker apparently won't. He has conducted a full week of pre-budget briefings in which he has detailed his budget proposals area-by-area.

Washburn was the sponsor of a measure last year which for the first time requires a governor to submit his appropriations bills within a month of the budget message.

When he was appointed a member of the appropriations committee seven years ago, the committee had no full-time staff.

He remained for four years as a member, was vice chairman for two years and in 1973 was appointed chairman — a goal he said he had worked for ever since he was elected.

A former Marine Corps pilot, Washburn is divorced and the father of two children.

He began his political career as the Morris city treasurer in 1946, worked for several years as treasury officer in the administration of former Gov. William Stratton and was an accountant for former state schools superintendent Ray Page. He also served as the budget officer for the Illinois Veteran's Commission.

Healthy structure

The administrative offices of the School of Medicine in Springfield recently moved into this new educational facilities building. This completed the first phase of the building's construction plans. Construction of the second phase will be completed in July of 1976, when another 120,000 square feet will be added to the building's floor surface.

$37.6 million for ILEC in '75

CHICAGO (AP)—The Illinois Law Enforcement Commission announced Tuesday a $37.6 million budget for fiscal 1975.

Nearly $31.5 million will be available to Cook County Chicago and Downstate areas for various programs focusing primarily on the police and the court system, said Gov. Daniel Walker and officials of the ILEC at a news conference.

Cook County will receive the largest amount — $12 million — some of which will be used to begin a program aimed at assuring criminal trials within 60 days of arrest.

Gov. Daniel Walker, Gene Eidenberg, chairman of the ILEC, said David Fogel, executive director of the ILEC, said the problem of clogged courts exists primarily in the metropolitan Chicago regions where there is an average seven-month lapse between arrest and trial.

In all, $5.7 million, including $1.1 million in state funds, will be spent in the first year of the three-year program to improve efficiency and manpower conditions in the Cook County criminal justice system, Walker said.

A little more than $7 million will be available to metropolitan areas outside the Chicago regions.

Specified grants to these areas include:

—Crime prevention: $159,000 to be shared by Waukegan, Peoria, Springfield, East Louis, Joliet and Decatur; $19,000 to Venice and $24,000 to Bloomington.

—Special Investigation: $137,000 to Lake County.

—Police legal advisor program: $14,250 to St. Clair County and $23,750 to Madison County.

—For regional and special training: $19,000 to Lake and McHenry counties; $23,750 to Peoria, Tazewell and Woodford counties; $66,500 to Bond, Clinton, Madison, Monroe, Randolph, St. Clair and Washington counties.

—For legal services improvements: $75,000 to Rock Island County and $47,500 each to Peoria and Lake counties.

—Youth service bureaus: $33,250 to Alton; $25,650 to Aurora; $16,700 to Henry County; $43,400 to Rock Island and Mercer counties; $47,500 to East St. Louis; $66,500 to Peoria County.

—Communications studies and systems and records systems: $142,500 to Rock Island County and the Bi-State Iowa region; $475,000 to DuPage County; $66,500 to McHenry County; $285,000 to Rock Island and the Quad Cities area.

—Work-release programs: $57,000 to Winnebago County; $12,350 to Lake County; $58,900 to Peoria County.

—Alcohol and drug abuse rehabilitation programs: $19,000 to the Peoria Sober House; $33,250 to the McLean County Project Lighthouse; $57,000 to the Rockford and Northern Illinois Drug Council; $76,000 to the DuPage County Memorial Hospital Outreach Center.

—For regional planning: $95,000 to Henry, Mercer, Rock Island and Scott Iowa counties.

$5 million tax refund denied to U.S. Steel

CHICAGO (AP)—A Circuit Court judge denied Tuesday a bid by U.S. Steel Corp. to obtain a $5 million property tax refund.

The firm, in a suit filed in December of 1972, claimed it was over-assessed by $5 million in 1971. The corporation paid its property tax bill of $10.3 million under protest for that year and sought to have half the payment refunded.

In its suit, U.S. Steel charged that its South Works in Chicago was assessed arbitrarily and it claimed the assessment was so grossly inaccurate that it amounted to fraud.

In his ruling, Judge Robert Dempsey said the assessment was "reasonably arrived at." And he said the assessment was not so far out of line as to constitute fraud.

Judge Dempsey said U.S. Steel paid its taxes at a rate of 49.3 per cent, while the average rate for industrial property in Cook County was 50 per cent.

The judge said he personally figured the value of the South Works at $167 million, while the County Assessor's office came up with a figure of $134 million. Dempsey said small-percentage deviations are common.

He said he felt the steel company's suit was more critical of "technique than substance." The firm had criticized the methods appraisers used to determine the value of the property.

U.S. Steel also paid its 1972 property tax under protest and that suit still was pending. The firm was expected to appeal Tuesday's decision.

Social work director says need for professionals grows

By Brenda Penland
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

There is a great need for social workers, the executive director of the National Association of Social Workers (NASW), told a crowd of about 60 persons at a Human Resources conference Tuesday morning in the Student Center.

Chauncey Alexander spoke at the "Human Resources after Watergate" conference. It was sponsored by the College of Human Resources and the NASW.

Alexander said social welfare ranks third in the nation on the basis of need in professions. He said about 300,000 social workers are needed now.

"But we also have to consider the demand," he said. "We might need that many but the money to pay them isn't available."

Alexander said the demand for social workers varies throughout the country. "Social workers must be willing to move to their jobs," he said.

"There is a tremendous need for social workers in rural areas but most have a tendency to migrate to the cities," he said.

He said we are going through a

Band concert is tomorrow in Shryock

The 75-member SIU Symphonic Band will present its winter concert at 8 p.m. Thursday in Shryock Auditorium.

Appearing as dance soloist with the band in Warren Benson's "Solitary Dancer," a contemporary work for 40 players, will be Lori Crocker, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Don Crocker of Carbondale. A Carbondale high school student, she is a dance student of Tori Intravala, and during the summer of 1973 appeared with the Dayton Regional Ballet Company.

Featured on the program will be the "Festival a Kerkrade," a suite by French composer Serge Lances, based on the music festival held each four years at Kerkrade, in southern Holland. The movements are vividly descriptive in their musical content, according to Nicholas J. Koenigstein, conductor.

Another work of major proportion for the concert band medium is the "Festive Overture" of Dimitri Shostakovich," Koenigstein said. The band will play a version transcribed for American bands by Donald Hunsberger and released in 1965.

The program will include two marches—"Silver Cornets" featuring the entire cornet-trumpet section, and "Cuban Fantasy," a suite of three pieces by Fred Keener, featuring English horn soloist Charlene Evans.

Incidental music from the television series "Victory at Sea" by Richard Rodgers will conclude the program.

The public is invited to attend. There is no admission charge.

Foster enters innocent plea

CHICAGO (AP)—Sidney Foster, 31, pleaded innocent Tuesday in Circuit Court to charges of murdering blues singer Vivian Mamalove Patterson.

Her body was found Jan. 23 in the luggage compartment of a car allegedly belonging to Foster.

The indictment, returned Feb. 22, accused Foster of shooting Miss Patterson and then concealing the body. Foster is also charged with concealing a homicide.

Chauncey Alexander

retro-regression in the service of Human needs.

"The philosophy of the Nixon administration is to get the federal government out of the Human Services field," Alexander said.

He said competition, the increasing number of women who work, and part-time workers have had a great impact on social welfare. The greatest competition occurs between people between the ages of 25 and 34, since 29 per cent of the labor force is between this age, he said.

"The number of part-time social workers has increased 62 per cent in the last 10 years," Alexander said. He also said there has also been a great increase in the last three years. In 1970 there were 170,000 part-time social workers and today there are 190,000, he said.

Alexander listed five areas in which he said students should be especially interested in. The five areas are: health care, corrections, aging, mental retardation and legislation.

"Health care is and will be a major social problem," he said. "But it has always concerned medical rather than social needs. More emphasis should be and will be placed on the social needs in the future."

He said one area with a great number of job opportunities available is the field of aging. He said the area of corrections should have important new opportunities in the future.

The area of mental retardation is just coming to the attention of social workers and a considerable amount of research work is available in the area, Alexander said.

He said social problems have become a major concern in legislation.

"The legislative arena is where problems have to be dealt with, so there is a need for people who have knowledge of social needs," he said.

Alexander said more information about job opportunities can be obtained by writing to the NASW in Washington D. C.

Vance White, administrator from the Illinois State Personnel Office, also spoke at the conference.

More information on job opportunities may be obtained at the Career Planning and Placement Center.

Meir peace talks get party backing

TEL AVIV (AP)—Premier Golda Meir won a massive vote of support from her Labor party Tuesday to head a new government for peace talks with the Arabs.

But the voting failed to end a Cabinet crisis that could prompt Mrs. Meir to resign.

More than 500 members of the party's 615-member Central Committee voted for "the immediate formation of a government able to take action and decisions, headed by Golda Meir."

Only four Laborites abstained and none voted against the resolution. But Defense Minister Moshe Dayan, who refused to stay in office, wants the opposition included in any new government for strength.

Dayan and 44 of his party associates voted to support Mrs. Meir but refused to vote for the proposed minority government. Their dissent threatened to keep the political crisis simmering.

"I regard Golda Meir as the most suitable prime minister," Dayan declared, throwing his weight behind the 75-year-old leader, but he warned: "I do not think a minority Cabinet is a good thing. I am not in favor of this government."

The fragile minority Cabinet Mrs. Meir has proposed would be charged with handling, among other things, negotiations with the Arabs through Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger. It would represent only 58 of the 120 seats in parliament.

She opposes the idea of a "national unity" government embracing the opposition. She contends it would be paralyzed in peace bargaining with the Arabs or in handling Israel's mounting problems following the October Middle East war.

The ailing Mrs. Meir, who stayed at home resting from shingles and fatigue, declined to attend the crucial party session that lasted six hours. She had until Wednesday midnight to present a new government.

Drawings stolen from art exhibit

Four drawings were stolen from the Art Students League exhibit in Barracks T-40, SIU police reported Tuesday.

The drawings, in color and about 12" by 12", were done by Rand Kington, an SIU art student.

Kington said that they were the only drawings that were in color. There were about 30 drawings.

Kington said he needs the pictures for his portfolio and "they were some of my favorites."

SIU to co-sponsor New York meeting

An international array of scientific talent will participate in a four-day conference Mar. 4-7 in New York City co-sponsored by SIU-C and the New York Academy of Sciences.

Lauriston C. Marshall, SIU adjunct professor of physics, and Norman Rostoker, University of California-Irvine and Maxwell Laboratories, San Diego, are conference co-chairmen for the Conference on Electrostatic and Electromagnetic Confinement of Plasmas and the Phenomenology of Relativistic Electron Beams.

Papers dealing with aspects of plasma physics and uses of electrostatic and electron beam techniques in plasma research will be presented by scientists from the Soviet Union, England, France, Canada and the Netherlands, in addition to scientists from the United States.

J. T. Verdeyen and Blake E. Cherrington of the University of Illinois department of electrical and nuclear engineering will present papers Monday in a session on electrostatic confinement of plasmas. Albert J. Hatch of the physics division, Argonne National Laboratory, Chicago, will give a paper Tuesday.

Among attractions at the conference will be a Tuesday evening concert by pianist Gunnar Johansen and a speech by Edward Teller—"Cave Men About The Fire," following a banquet Wednesday evening.

CSEC to hear monorail report

The Civil Service Employees Council (CSEC) will hear a report on the University of West Virginia monorail system at its meeting at 1 p.m. Wednesday in General Classrooms 121.

Donald Ward, manager of personnel services, will give a report to the group on administrative transfers to civil service. Ms. Carolyn Fleming, council secretary said.

The CSEC will also hear reports from their committees for traffic and parking, ombudsman position, resolution on salary, seniority and the energy crisis, she said.

County clerk race spans generation gap

By Randall R. von Liski
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

"How old are you suppose to be before you start caring about government," asks Stan Fraser, 22-year-old candidate for the Republican nomination for Jackson County clerk.

Fraser, and SIU senior majoring in government, has found his age to be a problem in convincing some voters of his ability to "do the job" if he is elected.

There are two obstacles in his way. The first is Gene Truitt, 45, a county jail officer who is running against Fraser for the Republican nomination in the March 19 primary.

Truitt says "I have a very worthy opponent. I think he (Fraser) would make a good county clerk." Truitt admits he hasn't been campaigning very hard.

But even if Fraser is nominated his Democratic opponent will be Delmar Ward, 55, has served as county clerk since 1958. "I do the job and I do it good," says Ward. He is seeking a fifth term and is running unopposed in the Democratic primary.

The county clerk is elected to a four-year term. Beginning next Dec. 1, the clerk's salary will be raised from $12,500 per year to $17,700.

"It's enough pay to attract qualified people," says Fraser.

Fraser says one of his goals if elected would be to clean up the voter registration lists. He said in a visit to Brush Towers Monday he discovered that only one-sixth of the voters listed as living there still do and that the rest have moved away. Yet their names are still on the lists.

Fraser, who says he will spend less than $500 on his campaign, also believes in making "a big effort" to register student voters in Jackson County.

Truitt says the clerk's office is overstaffed. With reference to Ward, Truitt promises that if elected he would put in an eight-hour day. Said Ward, "Some days I put in more than eight hours."

Truitt said he also would like to see the clerk's office open some evenings "so that people who work could conduct their business."

Fraser said he is hoping that the voters will think that 16 years is enough time for any man to hold one office. Ward said "Elections are something you never know about."

Voters list carries 'missing persons'

By Rafe Klinger
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

A Republican candidate for Jackson County clerk in the March 19 primary presented incumbent Clerk Delmar Ward Tuesday with a list of voters who are registered to vote in the Brush Towers precinct, but no longer live there.

Stan Fraser, 22, said the list was an affidavit signed by him of 100 voters who are registered but have moved out of the 23rd precinct which consists of Brush Towers.

Fraser, an SIU senior majoring in government, said it is the duty of the county clerk to keep an "up-to-date registration list." He said his list represented only "one-sixth of the people who names should be removed from the precinct's voter list."

Ward said he was "tickled to death" with Fraser's action.

"It's anybody's prerogative to file with the clerk," he said. "With taxes, two elections and caucuses, it's been hard for me to keep up."

Fraser said an out-of-date registration list "opens up the possibility of voter fraud." People no longer living in a precinct but still on the voter list could return to vote or someone else could use their name to vote, he said.

Ward said he welcomed any citizen's attempt to update voter registration lists. He said he the clerk would need a much larger staff to keep tabs of all the voters in the county. "It's up to the election judges" to check the addresses of voters at the polls, he said.

Student groups request funds

About 35 student organizations had requested funding for 1974-75 from the Joint Fee Allocation Board (JFAB) by noon Tuesday. The deadline was 5 p.m.

Organizations requesting funds ranged from the mammoth Student Government Activities Council, Inter-Greek Council and MOVE to the smaller SIU Dames Club and Spirit Council.

Groups requesting funds for the first time include SIU's alternative newspaper "Kol Shalom" and the Law School Student Organization.

Watergate lecture to be rescheduled

The lecture by Kenneth Guido concerning Watergate was canceled Monday night due to Guido's illness, a school School of Law spokesman said.

Kenneth Guido, a Common Cause lawyer who helped force the disclosure of secret contributions to the campaign of President Richard Nixon, is suffering from flu in Washington, D.C. and thus could not attend the lecture, said the spokesman.

The lecture, entitled "Watergate And Beyond", was sponsored by the student bar association at SIU.

The School of Law spokesman said that another lecture by Guido will be arranged and announced later.

Former policemen enter guilty pleas on extortion count

CHICAGO (AP)—Three former Chicago policemen pleaded guilty Tuesday to charges of conspiring to extort money from 28 tavern owners from 1966 to 1970.

Of the 14 policemen indicted last August, a total of seven, including former Austin District Commander Mark Thanassouras, have pleaded guilty.

Judge William J. Bauer of U. S. District Court set April 16 for sentencing of the three — former Sgt. Leroy E. Yauger and former patrolmen Kenneth J. DePaola and Fran Nanni.

Each faces a maximum prison sentence of 20 years and $10,000 in fines.

Trials for five of those who did not plead guilty were scheduled to begin Wednesday. Two others were scheduled to be tried separately at later dates.

States can't tell if extra gas is delivered

By Louise Cook
Associated Press Writer

State energy officials say they really can't tell whether the oil companies are delivering all of the gasoline they're supposed to under emergency fuel allocations ordered late last month.

"We have no precise way of knowing," said James W. Cook, the energy coordinator of Illinois, which was supposed to get an extra 31.4 million gallons of gasoline added to its regular February allocation of 313.6 million gallons.

Pennsylvania energy chief William Wilcox said he didn't even know how much the regular February allocation would be until Feb. 20. "We're flying blind," he said, adding that he has no idea whether all of his 25.2-million-gallon emergency allocation has been delivered.

The Federal Energy Office, in two separate orders, directed the oil companies to release extra gasoline from inventories to 26 states and the District of Columbia. The emergency allocations totaled more than 315 million gallons and boosted the original allocations by 10 per cent.

State officials contacted in an Associated Press survey said Tuesday that they generally had to depend on reports from the oil companies and service stations in trying to determine whether the fuel actually arrived. They said service station lines seem to be shorter, indicating that there probably is more gasoline available. How much more, they don't know.

Cook said that some of the extra gasoline involved already was in the state, stored in tanks, barges and filling stations. The rest of the fuel had to be brought from other areas.

Did the gasoline get to the public? "We don't have a formalized checking arrangement," said Cook. "One of the most significant checks is the number of calls we get for emergency help in getting the product."

The energy officer said calls dropped off "drastically" after Feb. 22, when the second emergency allocation was announced. He also said that service station lines seemed shorter.

Federal energy chief William E. Simon said Monday that the allocations had succeeded in cutting down the wait for gasoline. "We've seen the alleviation of the lines in all the hard-hit areas," he said, although he could not promise that the lines wouldn't return once the allocations are exhausted.

Connecticut officials agreed that the lines are shorter and said, therefore, that the extra gasoline must be arriving. But the state Energy Emergency Agency says it hasn't received any reports from the oil companies or their distributors and can't really tell how much fuel has been delivered.

The best way of checking, said agency officials, would be gasoline tax records, but those records aren't compiled until a month after collections.

Nevada officials said that only 45,000 of the extra 1.9 million gallons allocated to the state had been delivered by Monday.

The rest of the fuel "is in the process of arriving and will come through normal channels during the first two weeks of this month," said Kelly Jackson of the state Public Service Commission. Jackson said the oil companies "have told us by telegram that they recognize their obligation" to provide the gasoline.

John C. Tolson III, the chairman of the North Carolina Energy Panel, said he asked the oil companies to advise his office how much fuel was delivered and to whom. Thus far, he said, he's received no reports and doesn't know how much of the allocation has arrived.

George Rodericks, who is heading the gas allocation program for the District of Columbia, said he received telegrams from the major oil suppliers telling him the fuel had been delivered. He said the extra gasoline enabled 40 stations in the district to open for two hours a night last week.

Vic Rasheed, the head of the Greater Washington-Maryland Service Station Association, said the District of Columbia "seems to be doing well with its share, much better than some of the suburbs." "Was all the gas delivered?" "Who can tell," Rasheed replied.

"Some dealers say we gave you 5,000 extra last month and are taking it off this month. It's just hard to tell."

Missouri officials had another problem. The Fuel Allocation Board said it was so busy trying to fill requests for gasoline and other petroleum products that it didn't have time to keep track of the extra 12.4 million gallons in the emergency allocations.

Canut-Amoros spends sixth day as witness

SIU Legal Counsel John Huffman cross-examined Marisa Canut-Amoros for several hours Tuesday, the sixth day of the latest round of Illinois Fair Employment Practice (FEPC) hearings.

Ms. Canut-Amoros spent her sixth straight day on the witness stand in her case against SIU for firing her because of alleged sex discrimination.

Ms. Canut-Amoros' attorney, Sylvia Roberts, re-directed questions late in the afternoon and is expected to sum up the complainant's case early Wednesday.

Most of Ms. Roberts' re-direction centered on clarifying various letters and documents presented by Huffman as evidence.

Ms. Canut-Amoros also testified Tuesday on her attempts to be employed in the School of Engineering and Technology for summer quarter, 1971. She was a full professor in the School of Engineering and Technology until the end of that summer.

Dating service leads girl to snaky world

By Michele Ver Voort
Student Writer

Lonely?
SIU got you down?
Haven't found Mr. Right yet?
Try the Bailey Dating Service.

I found that ad in the classified section under entertainment in the D.E. so, since I answered every question supposedly correctly, I decided to get myself a hot date for the weekend.

When I called, a guy named Rich answered. He told me the service was absolutely free and that it would guarantee me a date for the weekend. How could I refuse?

Rich asked me questions on what I would like my dream date to look like and what sort of personality traits I would require in a desirable male.

"My criteria aren't impossible," I told him. "I would like to have an older man (not some of these little kids), someone over 5-foot-10-inches tall, because that's how tall I am; who likes all kinds of music, one who likes to boogie, and one that is mellow."

"Great," Rich said, "but is there any particular kind that you don't want?"

"Yeah, now that you mention it," I told him. "I don't want any religious fanatics or sex perverts."

Rich laughed, and I took that for agreement.

"You sound like you want a date with me," he said. (Are these guys setting this thing up for them? Who's hard up, them or me?)

Rich said some of his friends and himself would compare traits with some men then give me a call, probably by the weekend.

I was anxiously waiting for Saturday night and my knight in shining armor.

A couple of days later Rich called and said the guys at Bailey Hall, who organized the service, decided they would have a party Friday night since they only received 10-15 calls and asked if I would like to come.

Friday night came and I put on my groovy threads, brought my roommate Debbie along for moral support, and went to Bailey Hall to meet Mr. Wonderful.

When Debbie and I got to Bailey, we could hear noise coming from one particular window.

I said to Debbie, "Let's forget about it O.K., and go into town."

"Come on, what have we got to lose, we're already here," Debbie said.

So in we went and knocked on the door. A tall young man answered who said he was Rich. Debbie and I walked into the room and there it was, six men and zero girls. Panic.

"Well, you see, all the people left to get something to drink. I promise, they'll be back in about 15 minutes," Rich said.

"Where are the other guys that are organizing the dating service?" I said.

"Gary is in the next room. He's one of them, would you like to meet him?"

Rich took me into the next room and Gary wasn't there, he had left. I think he had the right idea to leave so he wouldn't be associated with the service.

I sat down and waited; for what I didn't know. Meanwhile, Gary showed Debbie and me his pet boa constrictor and told us it had just eaten a rat. It was evident; a portion of its stomach was three times the size of its head.

Below the snake's cage was another cage of mice which was to be the next meal. Somehow I felt like those mice, waiting for a slow and painful death.

I looked around the room to see if there was something interesting going on. The only thing was some dude sitting on a desk smiling at himself in a mirror. I thought this guy must be off the wall so I just sat and watched him make faces at himself.

An hour went by and those people never came back.

"I don't understand it," Rich said. "Everyone I called said they were coming." (Well, Rich, maybe they were smart!)

I finally realized that this so called "dating service" was a disaster and my dream date was definitely not at Bailey Hall.

I said "See ya around sometime," and left in a hurry. Debbie and I walked into town to laugh and cry over a glass of beer. We both hoped that maybe next weekend might be a whole lot better. What could be worse?

Kissinger trip brings hope of embargo end

WASHINGTON (AP)—Optimism that the Arabs will completely lift their oil embargo against the United States continued here Tuesday as Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger briefed President Nixon on his Middle East trip.

Kissinger spent 45 minutes with Nixon at the White House. Afterward, Gerald L. Warren, the deputy press secretary, turned aside all questions with the comment,

"they said any assumption other than they are hoping for a removal when the Arab oil ministers meet Sunday in Libya would be absurd."

Kissinger also had lunch with Sen. J. W. Fulbright, D-Ark., chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee. Kissinger testified on Wednesday at a closed session of the House Foreign Affairs Committee.

Experts say an early end to the Arab oil embargo might ease the threat of U.S. gasoline rationing but would not necessarily bring a quick return to business as usual in this country.

It probably would take at least a month for tankers carrying Arab oil to begin reaching the United States once the embargo is lifted, and it could be several weeks more before the rate of imports increased to pre-embargo levels.

Beyond these built-in delays, however, a big question is whether the Arabs would remove all limits from their production and imports, allowing the United States to get back to meeting all demand.

Good teaching conference set for this week

The fourth annual "Good Teaching Practices Conference" will be held Thursday and Friday at the Student Center.

Guest speaker will be Frank Hewett, psychologist and author of "The Emotionally Disturbed Child in the Classroom." He is the developer of what he calls "engineered classroom design."

Other speakers will include SIU President David R. Derge; Richard Haney of Mt. Vernon, assistant superintendent, Office of the Superintendent of Public Instruction; Kathy Walsh of Bourbonnais, SIU Student Council for Exceptional Children; and Jason R. Barr III of Springfield, president, Illinois Council for Exceptional Children.

Discussion topics will include utilization of resource rooms, managing behavior problems, occupational information, learning and interest centers, language development, programs for pre-school handicapped children and others.

An exhibit of commercial materials for special education will be shown, and a display of art by the handicapped will be displayed in the University Center Lounge Gallery.

FBI issues

third warrant for bank robber

The FBI has issued a third warrant for a suspect believed to have taken part in the Feb. 22 Goreville State Bank Robbery.

The FBI issued the warrant Friday. Two other warrants had been issued before that.

An FBI spokesman said the third warrant is for a girl. He added that the three other persons sought in connection with the robbery are young.

He said the FBI believes all three suspects are from out of state.

Three men have already been arrested for the bank robbery. Two of the three are from Carbondale.

Don't just be looked at, be looked up to.

After a young woman enrolls in Air Force ROTC, she's eligible to compete for an Air Force scholarship that includes free tuition, lab and incidental fees, and reimbursement for textbooks for her last 3 years. In addition, in their junior and senior years, a tax-free monthly allowance of $100 is paid to both scholarship and non-scholarship cadets alike.

When she gets her degree, the career as an Air Force officer awaits her—career that matches her abilities to a job with rewarding challenges. A career with benefits like 30 days' paid vacation, free dental and medical care, frequent promotion, good pay, travel, and a great retirement package.

Walker to present budget to General Assembly today

SPRINGFIELD, IL. (AP)—Gov. Daniel Walker goes before the Illinois General Assembly Wednesday for the climax of his novel, week-long presentation of his fiscal 1975 state budget.

Still to be revealed are the amount of the total budget and Walker's plans for highway construction during the coming fiscal year, as well as the budgets of a host of departments, commissions and agencies.

But in a series of briefings that began last Monday, the governor announced that he hopes to increase spending for public education at all levels, raise salaries for state employees, lower taxes slightly and hold the line on welfare spending.

The increases he is requesting for education and for other areas of government it already announced total some $300 million over amounts appropriated during fiscal 1974.

Thus, unless there are big increases still to be revealed, Walker's fiscal 1975 budget is not likely to rise much beyond the $7.6 billion appropriated during 1974.

Walker said Tuesday he would raise salaries for state employees an average of five per cent, saying "inflation and shortages have hit the working man the hardest."

The governor said Monday his budget proposal for higher education would allow tuition to be maintained at current levels at the state's colleges and universities and would increase the number of students receiving scholarships.

He proposed a higher education budget of some $706 million, up $52 million over the previous year. Walker also proposed increased spending of some $138 million for elementary and secondary education. He called this a "massive infusion" of new funds, but the head of the Illinois Association of School Boards said it was less than the governor should have made available under a new school aid formula.

And Walker said he might not even ask the General Assembly for some $12.7 million to which local districts are entitled under the same formula during the current fiscal year.

On Sunday, the governor said he would ask the legislature to eliminate the sales tax on all drugs and medicines and expand a program of housing relief for the elderly.

Walker pledges funds for trauma program

By T. Lee Hughes
Associated Press Writer

CHICAGO, Ill. (AP)—Gov. Daniel Walker has assured public health officials that funds will be available to keep Illinois trauma programs operating at the present level, the state's top health official said Tuesday.

Dr. Joyce Lashof, state public health director, said the money would be state or federal. Local governments, she said, would not have to contribute.

Health officials had said that, for the fiscal year starting July 1, only $96,000 of the estimated $250,000 in state funds needed would be allotted for program designed to save the lives of seriously injured persons through fast, specialized care.

They suggested that hospitals and local communities might have to share in funding of the program.

"The governor has assured us there will be funds adequate to maintain the program at this year's level," Dr. Lashof said. "That's the commitment, and I have no doubt the funds will be there."

Teri Romano, operations director for the department's division of emergency medical services, said the governor's assurance means that none of the trauma program's 50 coordinators will be fired.

The three-year-old program was threatened by a possible cutback because of a phasing out of the federal grants under which it was started.

Miss Romano said $1.5 million was provided the first year, $1.6 million the second year, and $1.2

million this year. But about $250,000 will be needed next fiscal year to make up for a further reduction in federal trauma funding, she said.

Federal funding for 16 of the 50 trauma was scheduled to run out in July.

The trauma program is a system of coordinating emergency health care. It involves the training of medical workers, special communications equipment, and coordinators who see that seriously injured patients are taken to the appropriate hospitals.

Theater sets play on Thursday

An experimental production of "A Man For All Seasons" will be presented at 8 p.m. Thursday at the main theater in the Communications Building.

"Experimental" means a "common man" will explain the events of the show between segments. The play, by Robert Bolt, is designed to compare the corrupt government of the Sixteenth century in England under Henry VIII, to the Watergate problems in the U.S. today.

Director Kenneth Freeburn will use techniques of Epic Theater as used by Erwin Piscator, a prominent Epic Theater director.

The play is sponsored by the Southern Laboratory Theater and is free to the public.

Easing of Arab oil embargo may end threat of rationing

WASHINGTON (AP)—An early end to the Arab oil embargo, now hoped for by U.S. sources, might ease the threat of gasoline rationing but would not necessarily bring a quick return to business as usual.

It probably would take at least a month for tankers carrying Arab oil to begin reaching the United States once the embargo is lifted, and it could be several weeks more before the rate of imports increased to pre-embargo levels.

Beyond those built-in delays, however, remained two big questions:

—How soon would the embargo actually end?

—And how much oil would the Arabs permit to be produced and exported to the United States?

If the embargo continued much longer, its ending could be too late to increase U.S. supplies, particularly of gasoline, in time for spring and summer vacation seasons.

Just as big a question is whether the Arabs would remove all limits from their production and imports, allowing the United States to go back to meeting all demand. They may not.

Instead, the Arab nations could limit their production and refuse to provide ever-increasing exports of oil to meet a rising U.S. demand; in that case, the United States would have to continue its fuel-saving measures or face a growing oil shortage.

Authoritative U.S. sources, hoping that a meeting of Arab oil ministers scheduled for next Sunday would bring an end to the embargo, nevertheless seemed to think it would not lead to unrestrained production.

Instead, the expectation appeared to lean toward a return to pre-embargo production levels, requiring continued U.S. conservation efforts.

A few statistics show the situation:

—Total U.S. petroleum imports peaked last November at about 7.1 million barrels per day, then plunged downward as the Arab embargo took effect.

—In recent weeks, total petroleum imports have averaged around 4.9 million barrels daily, about 2.2 million barrels below the November peak.

—An end to the embargo and restoration of pre-embargo imports could raise imports back to the 7.1-million-barrel rate; but U.S. petroleum demand presumably would have continued to grow in the meantime.

—The National Petroleum Council

estimates that increased demand would require imports averaging some 7.5 million barrels daily by the second quarter of this year.

—If the embargo continued, the NPC said, the nation would have to increase its conservation efforts to save that additional 400,000 barrels per day; clearly, the same would be true if the embargo were lifted but Arab production were limited at past levels.

2nd liberal arts speaker signed

By Bill Layne
Student Writer

Gerard Piel, editor and publisher of Scientific American, has been signed as the second speaker for the new liberal arts interdisciplinary studies course to be offered next quarter.

Piel will lecture May 6 at the Student Center Auditorium. Paul Gobert, associate dean of humanities of the College of Liberal Arts announced Monday.

The science magazine editor and publisher joins Georgia legislator Julian Bond, who will open the new lecture series April 8 at the University Theater in the Communications Building.

"Piel's lecture will emphasize the necessity of science for the humanities," Gobert said.

"We're having these lecturers tell students how liberal arts could be strengthened to better adapt them to the changing 'real' world. This is the purpose of the course, and Piel's topic fits right in with what we're doing," Gobert said.

Author, lecturer, essayist and scientist, Piel purchased Scientific American Inc. in 1946. With the help and advice of two co-editors, he changed the format of the magazine from a verbose scientific journal to a publication written in plain English to attract more people who are interested in reading about the fast-changing world of science. In 1972, Piel published a collection of essays and speeches titled "The Acceleration of History." The book depicts the rapid change in human affairs and how man has attempted to cope with these changes.

In addition to the lecture, Piel will be the guest speaker at an informal seminar the following day. The seminar will feature Piel along with selected SIU faculty. Gobert said that plans are being considered to videotape the seminars for future use.

The course, Liberal Arts Interdisciplinary Studies 303, is a three-part lecture series supplemented with selected readings written by the guest lecturers. The one-hour section requires students to attend class one hour per week in addition to the three lectures. The two-hour section is the same as the one-hour except that students who sign up for two hours of credit will be required to attend the informal seminar.

"We hope that this new approach to learning will give the humanities the shot in the arm that it has needed for a long time," Gobert said.

The associate dean is urging students to sign up for the elective pass-fail course as soon as possible. "If the response to the course is good enough, we'll definitely offer the course again next fall," Gobert said.

So far, only five persons have signed up for the one-hour section, while 26 have registered for the two-hour section.

Gobert said only 40 persons will be admitted to the two-hour section in order to keep the seminars from becoming too lecture-oriented. Gobert, adds, however, that the one-hour section will admit any student who wishes to sign up.

Surviving baby of quadruplets gains 2 ounces

EVANSTON (AP)—The condition of the surviving quadruplet born to a Joliet couple improved Tuesday and hospital officials reported she had gained two ounces.

A spokesman at Evanston Hospital said the infant remained in a special respirator under constant intensive care but was in good condition.

The quadruplets, two boys and two girls, were born Sunday, 10 weeks premature in St. Joseph's Hospital in Joliet to Mr. and Mrs. Terrence McCarthy.

They were transferred to a Chicago hospital shortly after birth. After the death of two of the children, the survivors were transferred again to Evanston Hospital.

Cabinet appointed by Wilson

By Arthur L. Gavanoh
Associated Press Writer

LONDON (AP)—Prime Minister Harold Wilson chose a new cabinet with a left-wing look Tuesday and ordered swift action to tackle Britain's gravest economic crisis since World War II.

He aimed first at settling the strike of the nation's 280,000 coal miners so that the country can get back to full-time work. Other key goals in his program were arrangements to set up billions of dollars worth of foreign credit to keep Britain solvent and steps toward renegotiating terms of Britain's membership in the European Common Market.

Brokers, bankers and businessmen appeared relieved that a phase of uncertainty and instability now seemed to be ending. Shares on the London stock market surged forward at the prospect of an end to the three-day workweek and reopening of the coal mines. The pound jumped up an initial four cents to $2.220, a show of reviving international confidence.

Wilson's 15 cabinet ministers, with two women among them, seemed on the surface to be a careful balance of the Labor party's left, center and rightist factions. But with crucial posts going to radical Socialists, the overall bias appeared distinctly leftist. Among those considered more radical were Michael Foot, Anthony Wedgewood Benn, Barbara Castle, Peter Shore and to a lesser extent Denis Healey.

The middle-of-the-road Liberal party, which holds the balance of power between the much larger Labor and Conservative parties, said in a statement that "claims that this would be a government of national unity are wholly bogus."

Wilson will need the Liberals to get major legislation passed in the House of Commons, where he holds only 301 of the 635 seats. That is more than any other party, but not enough for an outright majority. But his minority government would not necessarily fall on every defeat, unless the issue were made a question of confidence.

Wilson handed the major ministerial assignments to four men.

Foot, 61, employment minister, was under orders to settle the coal miners' strike quickly. He conferred with union and National Coal Board leaders. They arranged to resume negotiating Wednesday with a promise that the government will not block any deal giving the strikers more money than they had been offered previously.

Harold Lever, 60, got the trouble shooting post of chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster with an office in Wilson's 10 Downing St. headquarters. His job will be to seek mammoth credits from the United States, government banks, the Euro-currency markets and even, possibly, from Arab oil producers with surplus funds.

Healey, 56, as chancellor of the exchequer, will work in harness with Lever. His orders are to prepare a budget likely to recall the austerity of World War II days. A major job will be to restore world confidence in Britain's capacity to surmount its huge overseas trade deficit, now running at the rate of $10 billion a year.

James Callaghan, 61, as foreign secretary has the task of beginning the process of renegotiating terms of Britain's membership in the Common Market. But with the Laborites short of an majority, Callaghan is bound to move slowly.

Edward Heath, the Conservative leader, who quit the premiership Monday night after failing to talk the Liberals into a coalition, met with party workers Tuesday and was given a rousing reception.

Children's needs ignored in urban planning

By C.G. McDaniel
AP Science Writer

URBANA (AP)—Urban planners have failed to consider the needs of children in designing towns, housing developments and civic improvements, a Seattle psychologist said Tuesday.

In doing so, they deprive children of important learning opportunities, he said.

The psychologist, Halbert B. Robinson, a professor at the University of Washington, made his remarks to an international conference of educators and psychologists at the University of Illinois.

Seventeen experts on child development from 17 different countries are participating in the conference, sponsored by the United Nations Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organization (UNESCO).

Robinson, who was elected president of the week-long conference, said that "rarely are the services of child development or family specialists sought in planning towns, housing developments or civic improvements."

"Yet, it seems obvious," Robinson said, "that such experts should be members of any group that considers the places in which children will live, play, go to school, navigate traffic, see the pediatrician or dentist."

"For children to learn about the world of work... they need to see adults at work," he noted, adding that it is certainly possible to design neighborhoods which not only mix residences and businesses, but also display to passersby such workers as bakers, shoe repairmen and the like at their jobs. In central areas of many European cities and in small villages everywhere, Robinson said, "children have a chance to see a varied slice of the world."

"But with urbanization and especially in homogeneous suburbs and 'new cities,' sterile apartment groups which are more than family dormitories, adults at work are fast disappearing from the view of the children," he said.

"Planners must begin to take children into account if we are to avoid creating new problems in the process of solving old ones," the psychologist asserted.

Robinson, as well as other conference participants, emphasized the role of the family in the education of children, and said recent efforts in the United States and elsewhere to train parents to stimulate children's learning have been quite successful.

But he said in an interview that the United States "is really far behind some other countries" in training workers who are responsible for children in day-care centers.

The Soviet Union and other East European nations as well as Western Europe are ahead of the United States in this regard, he said.

Pre-school education "is the way of the industrialized world," he said, predicting an increase in such programs because of the growing number of women who are employed.

Because of the increasing number of single-parent families, Robinson said, provisions should be made to bring these parents together in living units so children have an opportunity to see how adults interact.

Final Exams Schedule

The 1974 Winter Quarter examination schedule attempts to avoid examination conflicts by providing separate examination periods for Tuesday-Thursday lecture classes. Some questions might develop for which answers can be provided at this time.

1. Classes that meet longer than one hour on Tuesday and Thursday, such as four quarter hour classes, should use the examination period established for the earlier of the hours. (For example, a class meeting from 1:00 to 2:50 on Tuesday and Thursday would hold its examination at 7:50 a.m., Saturday, March 16.)

2. Some classes meeting only on Tuesday and Thursday may not use a lecture instructional technique but do hold final examinations. For example, a laboratory or seminar type class may meet on Tuesday and Thursday from 10:00 to 11:50. Such a class would have its examination at 5:50 p.m. on Thursday, March 14.

3. The space scheduling section of the Office of Admissions and Records will forward to departments information relative to the location for examinations for those classes that cannot hold their examinations in their regularly scheduled rooms because of a space conflict. This will be done sufficiently in advance of the final examination week to provide sufficient notice for all.

The following points are also pertinent relative to the final examination schedule:

1. One and two credit hour courses have their examinations during the last regularly scheduled class period prior to the formal final examination week.

2. A student who finds he has more than three examinations on one day may petition, and a student who has two examinations scheduled at one time should petition his academic dean for approval to take an examination during the make-up examination period on the last day. Provision for such a make-up examination period does not mean that a student may decide to miss his scheduled examination time and expect to make it up during this make-up period. This period is to be used only for a student whose petition has been approved by his dean.

3. A student who must miss a final examination may not take an examination before the time scheduled for the class examination. Information relative to the proper grade to be given a student who misses a final examination and is not involved in a situation covered in the preceding paragraph will be found in the mimeographed memorandum forwarded to members of the instructional staff at the time they receive the final grade listing for the recording of grades.

4. A special note needs to be made relative to examinations for evening sections for those classes which have been granted a special time for examining all sections. As some students attending at night may not be able to attend the special examination period scheduled for the daytime, each department involved will have to arrange special examination periods for such students. This problem involves those night students who are fully employed during the day and who are taking night courses because it is the only time they are able to do so.

A's blues helped by Vida

MESA, Ariz. (AP) — The Oakland A's have called off their search for the old Vida Blue—they're excited about the new one.

"I've never seen him with such great desire and attitude—I guess those are the right words—before," pitching coach Wes Stock said after the opening week of spring training. "The left-handed pitcher admitted, 'If I could predict my season performance on how I feel now, I'd say I was going to be a 50-game winner.' But, he added, 'I don't set goals.

I just want to be part of the team."

And for the first time since 1971, when he was the best pitcher in baseball with a 24-8 record, a 1.82 earned run average and 301 strikeouts, Blue was part of the A's squad when spring training opened.

"I'm not used to being here before March. I might tire out before the season opens," Blue quipped after an early workout at Mesa's Rendezvous Park.

Blue held out until late March— even announced he was quitting baseball—before signing his contract in 1972. Last year, he arrived here in early March after a shorter holdout.

This year, he accepted owner Charles O. Finley's offer for an estimated $75,000 after a three-minute telephone talk.

"I guess he was in a good mood," Blue said of Finley. It must have been infectious.

Vida Blue, an often-moody young man the past two seasons, is in a good mood as his fourth big league season approaches. And he's in excellent shape after a winter that included weight-lifting to strengthen his legs.

When he posted a 20-9 record last season, coming back from his 6-10 mark in the year of the big holdout, people stopped worrying about what had become of his 1971 fastball.

"In 1971, I won half my games before anyone knew what I was throwing," the 24-year-old pitcher says now about his first full season. "Last year, I threw hard and earned all 20 victories."

In Stock's opinion, "Vida wants to become a pitcher now instead of just a thrower. Even when he throws batting practice, he's aiming for spots, not just throwing strikes."

are waste materials that accumulate from doing work without enough oxygen. Costill says this can be avoided by starting out slowly, refraining from sprinting and maintaining a constant pace during the running event.

Insufficient blood glucose (the sugar level of the blood), excessive water and salt losses in sweat, and hyperthermia or over-heating are also blamed for exhaustion. All three, stated Costill, can be offset to some extent by taking in fluids during the event.

Costill stressed the depletion of muscle glycogen as the most important cause of exhaustion. This involves depletion of sugar in the muscle fibers and also explains why Costill prefers running rather than biking.

"When you run, you share the responsibilities of the work by using other muscles in the body," he stated.

Because of the intensity of the work in running, the muscles cannot recruit sugar from all the cells. On a bicycle however, the work load is so severe that "after a while the only way you can press the pedal down" is to completely drain all the muscle fibers of their sugar, Costill explained.

Lecturer claims running benefits beat bicycling

By Linda Maday
Student Writer

David L. Costill, director of the Human Performances Laboratory at Ball State University, would probably recommend a run out to Giant City on foot rather than a bike ride.

During a lecture on Muscle Exhaustion During Distance Running recently, Professor Costill stated that "running does not deplete the leg muscles like bicycling does."

Costill said that in distance running events, "There's a point where it's not a lack of air or breathing that's a problem for the runner, it's a problem that the muscle just fails to function."

Costill has done research on actual muscle samples taken from the thighs of individuals before and after a prolonged run.

The symptoms of exhaustion described by most distance runners, Costill said, are "a combination of or maybe even just one" of the following: muscle cramping, inability to maintain the pace, loss of form, muscle pain, and cessation of activity.

Costill cited five potential causes for exhaustion, the first being the accumulation of lactic acids which

Something old, new, traded for '74 Expos

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla. (AP)—After their best record in history, the Montreal Expos are swinging for "More in '74." They might connect—if the "oldtimers" come through as expected and the youngsters come around as hoped.

The most celebrated addition to the Expos, of course, is Willie Davis—a longtime National League baseball star who will give the expansion Expos their first bona fide center-fielder in history.

Davis' acquisition was expensive for the Expos. They had to give the Los Angeles Dodgers their best pitcher, relief star Mike Marshall.

Marshall was by far the Expos' most valuable player in 1973 and accounted largely for their high finish in the zany National League East race.

The team from Canada was in the race until the last 24 hours and finished with a 79-83 record for fourth place, just 3½ games behind the winning New York Mets.

Hoping to tighten their defense down the middle, the Expos traded for the flashy Davis—one of the best center-fielders in baseball. In Davis, the Expos also have one of the game's best hitters and best baserunners.

The fleet outfielder will add to a team that has an interesting blend of experience and youth.

The biggest long-ball threat in the lineup is Ken Singleton, the right-fielder who led the team in nine offensive departments in 1973, including home runs—23—and RBI—103. Veteran left-fielder Ron Fairly, third baseman Bob Bailey and second baseman Ron Hunt give the Expos more solid hitting strength.

Expected to see limited duty in that outfield with Davis, Singleton and Fairly are Ron Woods, Boots Day, Jimmy Lyttle, and Clyde Mashore. The Expos' talent also includes people like shortstop Tim Foli and first baseman Mike Jorgensen. John Beccabella is the catcher, with Terry Humphrey waiting on deck.

Also, the farm system is at last producing for the relatively young Montreal organization and some pitching help may be forthcoming from two fine, young players—Dale Murphy and John Montague.

The system produced two excellent backup infielders last year—Pepe Frias and Larry Lintz. Lintz, as a matter of fact, could take Hunt's job away this year.

With Marshall gone, Manager Gene Mauch is hopeful that Tom Walker, Chuck Taylor, Don DeMola, Earl Stephenson and Montague can take up the slack.

The starting pitchers include Steve Rogers, Mike Torrez, Bill Stoneman, Balor Moore, Steve Renko and Ernie Manally.

Mauch, the only manager in Montreal's history, is optimistic enough to sign up for two more years.

"I wouldn't have accepted the extension on my contract if it wasn't obvious to me that the future is very bright and exciting for the Expos," says Mauch.

Santo hitless in Sox debut

SARASOTA, Fla. (AP) — Third baseman Ron Santo, acquired in a winter trade with the cross-town Chicago Cubs, made his White Sox debut Tuesday and went hitless in two trips as the Joe Lonnett's beat the Al Monchak's 5-3 in a six-inning intrasquad game.

Right-hander Rich Gossage was the most impressive of the seven pitchers, each of whom hurled for 15 minutes. Gossage worked 2 2-3 innings and yielded only one hit, a single.

The offensive star was veteran outfielder Buddy Bradford, who hit two singles and drove across two runs. Bradford also threw out a runner at third base.

Fired-up Salukis crush Detroit, 95-52

By John Morrissey
Daily Egyptian Sports Writer

An NIT-hungry Saluki basketball team overwhelmed an error-prone Detroit rival in the first half of their confrontation Tuesday night in the Arena and coasted to a 95-52 revenge win.

Detroit had beaten SIU 82-78 in overtime earlier on its home court.

Joe Meriweather was boxed, bumped and shoved under the boards by Detroit, but he still scored 21 points in the first half without fouling once to lead the Salukis to a 45-16 runaway lead at halftime.

SIU took off on unanswered scoring streaks of 14 and 16 points during that half to break open a game that was only 14-6 after 10 minutes of play.

Detroit's Owen Wells and Terry

Thomas kept their team in the game early with three baskets from long range, pulling Detroit even with SIU 6-6.

But then the Saluki man-to-man defense got tough and held off Detroit attempts to get in close the remainder of the half.

Meanwhile Meriweather, Mike Glenn and Dennis Shidler shifted the SIU offense into high gear, slowly at first, but methodically eroding the Detroit zone.

SIU ran the score to 20-6 before Wells broke the Detroit ice with a layup. After an exchange of buckets made it 23-12, the Salukis launched another offensive wave and pulled away to a 39-12 bulge before Wells again snapped the SIU string of baskets.

The Titans did not look like the same team that matched SIU in Detroit last month. Referees repeatedly called them for traveling, double dribble and fouls, and SIU capitalized.

Detroit had 14 personals in the first half to SIU's six, and committed 16 turnovers in the first 13 minutes of play.

SIU coach Paul Lambert said the SIU defense was "super."

Detroit went to a full-court man-to-man press in the second half, but it didn't keep the Salukis from pulling steadily away.

With the outcome decided and the pressure off, the game evolved into a rough run-and-shoot contest with flying elbows and other assorted contact under the boards.

Lambert started emptying the bench with three minutes to play as a spirited crowd chanted "N-I-T."

Lambert said SIU Sports Information had instructions to call in the SIU-Detroit score to the National Invitational Tourney panel, which is scheduled to meet Wednesday morning.

He pointed to SIU's credentials when asked if his team deserved an NIT bid.

"We're 19-7, this is a good ball club, we've got one of the finest centers in the country," he said. "The record speaks for itself."

Meriweather finished with 29 points and 14 rebounds, followed by three more Salukis in double figures. Glenn had 12 points and four assists, Shidler 10 points and seven assists, and Perry Hines also chipped in 10 points.

Wells, who brought a 21.2 average into Tuesday's game, hit 8 of 20 shots from the field for 16 points. Thomas was Detroit's only hot hand, hitting six of seven shots for 12 points.

Wrestler Weisen shows stuff at NCAA regional

By Kenneth Pilariski
Daily Egyptian Sports Writer

Sophomore wrestler Mark Weisen is a prime candidate for the sleeper of the year award after he captured the NCAA Eastern Regional title at Cincinnati over the weekend.

Weisen will be joining fellow teammates, Don Stumpf and Andy Burge at the NCAA Championships at Iowa State, March 14-16.

The 177 pound Weisen went into the qualifying meet unseeded and proceeded to tear the house apart. In first round action, Weisen decimated Marquette University's Rich Fronberg, 15-9. Fronberg was seeded third and was defending NCAA Eastern Regional champ.

Weisen decimated Emad Faddoril of Buffalo University, 9-5, in second round competition. In the third round, Weisen decimated second seeded Dave Gant of Indiana State, 10-7. For the title, Weisen decimated top seeded Rick Lagerman, 6-1. Lagerman is from the University of Wisconsin at Milwaukee.

Senior Don Stumpf will be making his second consecutive appearance in the NCAA Championships at 167 pounds. Last year Stumpf placed fifth.

In the first round, Stumpf pinned Dave Dwyer of Northern Illinois

University at the 4:45 mark. Stumpf then pinned James Carter of the University of Wisconsin at Milwaukee at the 1:40 mark in the next match. In the third round, Stumpf blanked Illinois State's Jim Ledbetter, 3-0.

Stumpf finished second as he was defeated by Clarion State's Bill Simpson, 6-3. Simpson is the defending NCAA champion, as well as the defending college and university division champ.

Senior Andy Burge will be going to the NCAA Championships for the third straight year. Burge has failed to advance beyond the second round in the past.

In the first round, Burge defeated Ron Langdon, 10-3, of Buffalo University. Burge decimated Georgia Tech's Jack Love, 9-4, in the second round action.

Burge was defeated by Clarion State's Pete Morelli, 5-2, in the semi-final match, but bounced back and defeated John Ried, 3-0, of Cleveland State for a third place finish.

Saluki wrestling coach, Linn Long said his three qualifiers "are really dealing with a hot hand right now and that's what it is going to take for them to place."

Women cagers qualify for regional tourney

The SIU women's basketball team qualified for the Regional Tournament, slated for Thursday-Saturday in Terre Haute, Ind., with a third place finish in the State Tournament at Charleston over the weekend.

Going into the State Tournament, SIU was seeded fourth behind Illinois State University, Western Illinois and Eastern Illinois.

After getting a bye in the first round of competition, the Salukettes downed Illinois Central College of East Peoria, 49-34, in the quarter finals.

Senior guard, Connie Howe led all SIU scorers with 13 points. Freshman center, Kathy Vondrasek was close behind with 12. Sophomore Vicky King chipped in with eight points, while Nancy Rist added six points. Cathy Lies finished with five, Marilyn Moreland had four and Kay Anderson rounded out the scoring with two points.

In the next game, the Salukettes were pitted against tournament favorite Illinois State. SIU was defeated by the tough Redbird team, 42-36.

Earlier this season, Illinois State downed SIU 47-31, in a home contest.

Connie Howe once again sparked the SIU offense with 15 points on five baskets and five free throws. Forward Vicky King chipped in with 13 points.

Other scorers for SIU were 6-1 Kathy

Vondrasek, who fouled out late in the fourth quarter, with four points. Cathy Lies and Nancy Rist finished with two points each.

The final game was for third place and a trip to the Regionals. SIU responded to the pressure and defeated Eastern Illinois University 46-31.

Connie Howe, averaging 14 points per game, was held to only five points on two for 13 from the field and one free throw.

Vicky King, filled in for Ms. Howe's scoring lapse with 18 points, the most points scored by an SIU player in the three day tournament.

Rounding out the SIU scoring were Kay Anderson with eight points, Vicki Flamank had five, Kathy Vondrasek and Peggy Durst had four each and Nancy Rist finished with two.

SIU out rebounded the Panthers, 39-34. Ms. Vondrasek and King led the rebounding corps with 10 each.

Twelve teams competed in the single elimination tournament, with ISU capturing first place. The Redbirds defeated Western Illinois in the final minutes of play, 55-53, to capture the title.

Intermediate gymnasts take 2nd in state meet

The SIU women's intermediate gymnastics team captured a second place finish in the state meet at Macomb over the weekend.

Western Illinois University won the meet with a team total of 72.05, SIU was next with 70.78 and Northern Illinois University was third with 58.87.

Launa Morrison qualified for the Midwest Regional Meet scheduled for March 15-16 in LaCrosse, Wisconsin with a first place finish in the all-around competition. Ms. Morrison was first in vaulting, bars and floor exercise. She came in second in the balance beam.

Ann Miller placed ninth in the all-around with a sixth place finish in the balance beam. Connie Doty finished second in floor exercise and came in fourth in the balance beam. Marilyn Geninatti brought home a third place finish in the vaulting.

NFL widow benefits termed 'inadequate'

CHICAGO (AP) — The National Football League Players Association Tuesday described as "totally inadequate" benefits under the player pension fund for widows of former players and for totally disabled former players.

The player union, holding a convention to nail down a list of demands for a new contract with club owners, contended that 10 former NFL players have died since 1970 and the highest payment to a widow has been $245 per month.

The union claimed that over half of the widows received only $200 per month.
